OVERALL

During the month of January, the Strengthening Local Capacity for Resilience and Recovery in Libya project continues its work to help local authorities to restore essential services, security and livelihoods opportunities.

At the request of the Ministry of Local Governance the project is planning a 2-days workshop for all target municipalities of the project.

Tatweer Research started the campaign 2020 in Benghazi and it is having a lot of support in social media. One of the team which participated in Operation Pour to learn new technologies is now in TEC Incubator, where Tatweer Research will help the members to create their own business.

The project has already selected the company that will design the building for the model police station. The company, Aktis Strategy will conduct the rule of law capacity assessment.

248 people, including women (18%), participated in consultation across Libya and voted the projects they consider priorities for their communities. In Murzuq, 100 extra people participated in the voting so the total number of people engaged reached 348.

The renovation of the Garyounis Clinic is almost at 45% completion, and the team in other areas of Libya is making some solid headway.

Discussions are on going to ensure smooth advancement of work.

Equipment

- Transportation of two ambulances to Ajdabiyah (95,000 USD - order placed, ambulances to be delivered when security permits).

Five submersible water pumps for Murzuq ($70,000 - order placed, production started).

- CT equipment renovation in Ajdabiyah (200,000 - company expected to confirm official service dealers)
INFRASTRUCTURE Challenges

Work continued in January to advance the review of infrastructure works. However, two of most advanced tender processes (Schools in Sabratha and In Benghazi) had to be cancelled while in final evaluation stage. The government made available funds directly to local contractors for the renovation of these objects, thus UNDP coordinators have requested written confirmations from the educational authorities to avoid similar situations with the other education related infrastructure. This created a gap and additional priorities from the identified needs will be assessed and quantified.

OUTPUT 02
Community Security and Local Model Police Station

The project has identified the company that will design the pilot Model Police Station (MPS) in Tripoli.

The MPS concept, including vision, role and responsibilities of the pilot MPS, was shared with the Libyan Ministry of Interior.

The architectural and design company will start the work once the concept is endorsed.

After a thorough process, Aktis Strategy was selected to conduct the rule of law capacity assessment in Tripoli, Benghazi and Sabha.

The team is being mobilized to be able to start the actual work by the end of February.

TATWEER RESEARCH

The marketing for 2020 campaign started January 8th with the first phase of 2020 banners hitting the main streets of Benghazi to create momentum and draw attraction for the upcoming TEC launch event.

There has been great social media engagement with the campaign. The 2020 banners created a buzz all over social media.

Capitalizing on the momentum created by the 2020 banners, TEC’s marketing team went on the streets of Benghazi asking people what do they know about the 2020 campaign and produced a short video that captures that.

The banners are now being replaced with the new banners that have the question mark.

With the new banners on the streets, the landing page for TEC website is now ready. Once people see the new banners and go on (http://tec.ly) they will find information on the campaign.

The launch of TEC Space is planned in Benghazi for 3rd March 2018.

TEC INCUBATOR

The incubator went into operation, and incubated School Connect Team, one of the teams that participated in Operation Pour.

The co-working space – TEC Space

The construction team finished working in the co-working space. The space is ready and now it is a matter of getting the furniture in the space.
